THOUGHTS FOR FLAG DAY.

WHEN you are reading up on the history of the flag, did it ever occur to you that each state has a positive place in the constellation of stars grouped in the jack? Just try it out on your neighbor and find out if one in a thousand knows that Nevada has a place in the corner of the national ensign together with every other state in the Union. How few know that Nevada's star in the jack is the thirty-sixth star and what is its place. This position was granted by the inalienable right of admission and no amount of legislation can change that position. Count your stars and find Nevada. Study the position until you know where you may place your finger on it in the dark. Then follow up the study with an inquiry into the reasons for granting state rights to Nevada and you will learn a whole lot about your state. You will learn that this state was Lincoln's main reliance, not alone from political necessity, but from the fact that Nevada had the wealth of bullion that promised to save the Union from the ignominy of a depreciated currency that was fast falling into disrepute.

By delving deeper into history it will be learned that Nevada only succeeded in gaining admission on the second attempt. The first effort was made in 1862 when the legislature passed an act that authorized the voters at the general election in September of 1863 to elect delegates to frame a state constitution to be submitted to the people for their approval. At the same time the question was submitted as to whether the people desired state government with the following results:

County—	For	Against
Churchill and Lyon	849	288
Douglas	193	119
Esmeralda	539	72
Humboldt	563	489
Lander	583	87
Ormsby	602	147
Storey	2415	155
Washoe	916	145
Total	6660	1502
Majority for state government		5158

It was provided in the constitution drafted that all the offices created by it should be filled at the time when the instrument was submitted to the people. This was a serious mistake for those disappointed in getting nominations for the position they desired, and their names were legion, became hostile to its adoption. There were nine newspapers in the territory at the time, all of which supported the adoption of the constitution and election of the Union ticket, except the Aurora Times, Humboldt Register, Old Pah Ute and Virginian Union. There was but one ticket in the field, the fight being made upon the organic law, and the Stewart war cry of injustice, contained in the clause that authorized the taxing of "the poor miners' shafts and drifts and bed rock tunnels", enabled the opposition to carry with it the popular element that resulted in an overwhelming rejection of the instrument.

The first effort to become a state proving a failure the ball was set in motion again within twenty days after the election by Senator Doolittle, of Wisconsin, who introduced a bill into the U. S. senate, February 8, that authorized the Nevadans to try it over again. While the measure was before that body Senator Connors, of California, remarked "Nevada is a mining community exclusively, and can never be anything else. It must always be fed from adjacent countries."

March 21, 1864, the bill was signed by President Lincoln and Governor Nye issued a proclamation calling for an election on the sixth of June to choose another set of delegates and to frame a state constitution and, by proclamation of the president of the United States, Nevada was ushered into the sisterhood of states on October 31, 1864.

SOLVING THE IRISH QUESTION.

THE Irish are willing to fight Germany but the British war office does not know how to get them into the field. Irish Catholics burn to avenge the wrongs of Belgium and France. England is fighting in the same cause. Since England cannot induce any of the Irish factions to fight, though all of them wish to, why not invite the more tactful French to enlist the Catholic Irish in an Irish Legion serving under the French flag? Tradition would foster such an undertaking. Send a French battleship to Cork and let Frenchmen appeal to the people for whose ancestors France did so much.

If 250,000 Catholic Irish crossed the channel to fight for France the Orangemen of Ulster would have no excuse for not doing their bit and their proportion would be 125,000 fighting men. No official figures are available, but it is well known that the British garrison in Ireland is composed of at least 150,000 first line soldiers, who could be released for service as soon as the Irish factions took to fighting Germany instead of fighting one another at home. The Royal Irish Constabulary could easily take care of the rest. In this way the Anglo-French armies in France and Belgium would gain 525,000 fresh troops of the best class and Ireland would become a source of strength instead of weakness during the struggle.

It does not lie in the mouth of America to judge the apparently irreconcilable Irish factions. If Ireland is split by religious differences, this continent was divided in the same way during the revolutionary period. In several New England colonies Catholic disability laws were in force when the American revolution broke out, and when some of these colonies became states of the Union they adopted constitutions which contained clauses excluding Catholics from citizenship and civil rights. To this day the constitution of the state of New Hampshire carries a Catholic disability clause imposing pains and penalties upon "Papists." The constitution of the United States rendered all such disability laws void, but the record of bigotry is embalmed forever in the original constitution of these states.

Had it not been for this anti-Catholic spirit in the New England states the French Canadians would almost certainly have joined in the American revolution and the United States would have had the North Pole for its northern frontier. The Canadians of those days judged the Americans by their nearest neighbors and a religious question lost the United States half a continent. Ulster is very like the greater part of New England was in Revolutionary days. This war may change Ireland as New England has been changed by the more liberal spirit of the times.

About the only way to galvanize San Francisco into a consciousness of the existence of war is to have one of those roving buccaners of the German navy to appear off the Farallones some morning and pitch a few shells into the vicinity of Bush and Sacramento streets. What a weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth would ensue. Perhaps the tightwads of that town would invite the Teuton pirates ashore and treat them royally on promise that they would not disturb the selfish atmosphere of the burg.

One of the regrets of the Liberty Bond subscriptions is that Nevada has the misfortune to be linked with such a disgraceful ally as California. This state will do its duty but, in the summary, the entire Pacific coast coterie of states will be reported as one division and therefore Nevada will have to share the shame of San Francisco which is more willing to stake a purse on a prize fight rather than help the country in its struggle against criminal oppression.

The delinquency of California in the Liberty Bond subscriptions is another excellent excuse for asking for a political separation and segregation of interests. Nevada cannot afford to be classed with such a city as San Francisco.

"If thine enemy smite you on the cheek, turn to him the other also" seems to be the favorite motto of a certain class of pacifists in California.

Scratch a Russian and you will find a Tartar is an old saying which might be improved by making it read "and you will find a German Socialist."

The German navy wants to fight. So does any other rat in a trap. Why don't they come out, if it is a fight they are after?

Count the Liberty Bond subscribers and you will have a roster of the true patriots of the country.

San Francisco is in the way game for the money that's in it. Patriotism for profit.

"Out, damned spot! Out I say!" is the only motto remaining for the consideration of San Francisco slackers.

PITTSBURGH, June 13.—Pittsburg defeated Boston yesterday 5 to 4 after eleven innings. Baird's triple was responsible in the eleventh for the winning run.

(By Associated Press.)
ST. LOUIS, June 13.—Rixey was effective with men on bases while his team mates bunched hits in the 7th and 8th innings yesterday and Philadelphia shut out St. Louis 4 to 0. J. Smith was put out of the game in the seventh for disputing Byron's decision on balls and strikes.

(By Associated Press.)
CINCINNATI, June 13.—Brooklyn bunched the few hits they made off Mitchell in the first and eighth innings and won from Cincinnati 2 to 0. Marquard was tight in the pinches but in the seventh, after Chase singled, he passed Neal. Cadore then went in and retired the side.

(By Associated Press.)
CHICAGO, June 13.—New York defeated Chicago 10 to 6 yesterday in the final game of the series. The visitors won in the sixth after a wild exhibition by Chicago which netted them five runs and caused the banishment from the field of Manager Mitchell and Captain Doyle, both of whom argued with Umpire Klem on his rulings.

With two out, Robertson and Holke beat out hits. While Hendrix was attempting to pass Rariden Holke stole second and went to third on Elliott's wild throw to center. Robertson scored on the play and Holke scored when Mann threw the ball away in an attempt to catch the New York man at third. Rariden walked and Tesrau was safe on Zeeder's fumble. Burns doubled and scored Rariden. Tesrau counted on a wild pitch and before Hendrix could steady himself Burns stole home.
